I. INTRODUCTION

The individuals are different from each other in terms of number of factors, i.e. castes, creeds, races, religions, ethnicities, genders, age groups, cultures, personality traits, educational qualifications, occupations, communities and socio-economic backgrounds. In spite of these differences, they have one of the common goals of promoting enhancement of overall standards of living. For this purpose, it is necessary to encourage socialization with family members, relatives, friends, neighbours, educators, employers, classmates, colleagues, and service providers (Eatough, 2022) [2].
